

FanBell is recommended in 36 of 117 judged answers

<https://fanbell.link> · paid fan interaction for creators: async paid questions, custom requests, tips, link-in-bio page · question set 20260905-3b98ae · 39 buyer questions × 3 repeats (the question is the unit; repeats measure the engine's own noise) = 117 answers in total · engines: OpenAI (117) · not run: Perplexity

Samples from the OpenAI web-search API (model gpt-4.1, search tool web_search_preview) — not the consumer ChatGPT or Perplexity apps, whose answers also depend on memory, location and personalisation. Run 2026-09-05 22:40:39.

This per-call rate is a descriptive snapshot. Change detection uses the share of matched questions holding the majority verdict, not a test of this tile's raw rate.

Read the interval, not the point. It is computed over your 39 buyer questions, not over the 117 samples: repeats of one question are correlated, so counting them as independent samples makes the interval narrower than the data supports. On this scan the 3 repeats of a question are worth about 1.1 independent samples, not 3 — an effective sample size of 44, not 117. This is a single-engine snapshot: ±13 points around 31% is what 39 questions on one engine can resolve. This scan's own repeat-to-repeat noise: 34 of 39 questions gave the same verdict on every repeat, so 13% of questions disagreed with themselves between repeats. Published estimates put the noise floor of AI-citation measurement at 3–7 points (arXiv:2603.08924, head domains) — context for the measured number above, not a substitute for it.

Can the engines read your site?

Overall: pass · robots.txt parsed · 6 page(s) checked · each engine judged on its own documented gates

We check whether each engine's crawler can reach your pages. We only sample answers from the engines named in the header (OpenAI); Google AI Overviews / AI Mode, Perplexity and Claude are checked for reachability only, and no number on this page is measured on them.

ENGINE	CRAWLER IT RELIES ON	VERDICT	PAGES REACHABLE	BLOCKING GATES FOUND
ChatGPT search	OAI - SearchBot	Reachable with this engine's crawler	6/6	—
Google AI Overviews / AI Mode	Googlebot	Reachable with this engine's crawler	6/6	—
Perplexity	PerplexityBot	Reachable with this engine's crawler	6/6	—
Claude	Claude - SearchBot	Reachable with this engine's crawler	6/6	—

Reachable = the robots rules allow this engine's search crawler and a fetch with its user-agent returned the page. It shows what the crawler would receive; it is not proof that the engine has crawled or indexed the page.

► Per-page detail

Each engine is judged on its own rules. The 4 MB size gate is ChatGPT's alone — over 4 MB — observed limit of ChatGPT's fetcher (RESONEO, 2026) observed · RESONEO 2026; Google's documented "first 2 MB" (Googlebot docs) appears as a note on the page, never as a failure official · Google. Each page is fetched with the crawler's user-agent: that shows what a crawler would receive from your server, not proof that the engine crawled the page our inference.

Deliberately not scored: schema.org / JSON-LD (matched difference-in-differences on 1,885 pages: AI Overviews -4.6%, others flat; ChatGPT strips JSON-LD before the model sees the page); llms.txt (97% of existing files are never fetched; Google says it ignores them); IndexNow (no Google support and no AI engine documents using it); FAQ / Q&A re-formatting (controlled tests show no gain; Q&A format -5.7% absorption).

Category shape: vacuum our inference

Few third-party ranking pages exist for these questions. Your own answer pages can win directly — this is the one shape where building pages pays, and the window closes as the category fills in.

75% of citations go to third-party pages · 8% to ranking pages · 4% to ranking pages that already name a tracked competitor.

Every question we asked

This scan asked 39 of the 40 buyer questions your Fix Pack sells (39 × 3 = 117 answers, not 120): the question set came up 1 short when it was frozen, and it stays frozen so every re-test is comparable. If you would rather have the difference back than the comparability, tell us and we refund it.

39 of the 40 question(s) this tier sells frozen for this site on 2026-09-06. This basket predates diversity/intent/grounding tracking, so those details were not recorded. how we build question sets.

Every question was asked in one wording only, so this scan cannot say how much a rewording would move it. Baskets frozen before we started asking each question in two wordings carry a single phrasing; the next new basket for this site will carry both.

Which of your pages answers each question

We crawled 30 of your pages, simulated 281 retrieval sub-queries for your 39 buyer questions, and matched them page by page. Every question below is ranked within this scan by how close your own best page comes to it, and each one carries what that page is missing.

This is a ranking, not a score: the numbers are cosines between simulated sub-queries and your page text (text-embedding-3-small), they are on this site's own scale, and there is no cut point at which a page becomes "covered". We do not publish one, because on our own scans no fixed value means the same thing on two sites. What is measured, not inferred, is the lacks column: a price, figures, a comparison or numbered steps are either on the page or they are not. How much the ranking is worth on this scan: questions you were recommended for had median similarity 0.606, questions you never were had 0.570 — AUC 0.619 where 0.50 is no separation at all (weak). Similarity barely separates the two groups on this site (AUC near 0.5). Use the ranking to decide where to look first, never as a prediction that a page will or will not be picked.

Simulated fan-out: no engine publishes the sub-queries it actually issues, so these are modelled with gpt-41-mini and frozen with your question set.

Your Fix Pack

Fill in your real facts (prices, differences, the questions buyers ask you) and we generate the technical diffs, up to 5 first drafts written only from your facts — and none at all where your own pages already answer the question, in which case you get that page named and what to strengthen instead — and profile copy for the sites the engines cite. You approve every item; nothing is published for you.

Keep these questions monitored — the subscription re-tests every 14 days, $149/mo with your $99 credited.

These observed rates summarize this frozen set of 39 buyer questions, each asked 3 times, through the OpenAI web-search API on 2026-09-05 22:40:39. They are not a market share estimate and do not predict what a different set of questions would return. With 39 matched questions, this comparison has limited power and is mainly able to detect large, directionally consistent changes. Under the planning assumptions used here — 80% power, a two-sided 5% test and an assumed 20% of questions disagreeing between the two scans — a change of about 20 points has about 80% power in one primary comparison. This is not a cutoff: smaller changes can sometimes be detected, and larger changes are not guaranteed to be detected. Two AI judges agreed on 39 of 40 sampled answers ($\kappa=0.95$; approximate nominal 95% interval 0.85–1.00). This measures agreement between two related AI models, not accuracy against a human gold standard. Human validation is not yet complete. This report is measurement evidence, not attribution: a change detected between two scans does not on its own show that a change to the site caused it.

Sampling: 117 web-search calls, 38,136 input / 68,182 output tokens. API samples of OpenAI, not the consumer apps; the API and the app are different populations (different retrieval settings, no personalisation or memory in the API), so these rates do not transfer to what a person sees in the app. Scan id 260905-fanbell-link-fd10.
